Program Report

Muslim students and youth conference organized at the Constitution Club in New Delhi on June 07, 2026, was formally inaugurated with the recitation of the Holy Quran (Tilawat-e-Quran) by Hafiz Sabreen Sahab. Following the recitation, he introduced the attendees and invited them to the stage. After all the guests were seated on the stage, the traditional prayer (Dua) of the Muslim Rashtriya Manch was recited by Dr. Shabina Sheikh. Mohammad Faiz Khan also greeted all the participants from the stage by singing a patriotic song.

Following the prayer, the program convener, Dr. Imran Chaudhry, welcomed and introduced all the guests, and presented the outline of the program. He stated that this grand conference organized by the Muslim Rashtriya Manch was convened with the objectives of nationalism, social harmony, and national integration. He explained that the formation of the Muslim Rashtriya Manch emerged as the need of the hour when terrorist activities were being associated with the Muslim community. Eminent thinkers including the late Muzaffar Hussain, the then Sarsanghchalak of the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh, Respected K.S. Sudarshan, and Maulana Jameel Ilyasi, along with many other national thinkers, deliberated seriously on this situation. They believed that the core message of Islam is peace, humanity, and brotherhood. As a result of this contemplation, the Muslim Rashtriya Manch was established on the eve of Eid Milan ceremony held on December 24, 2002.

Dr. Chaudhry further shared that in the year 2009, he was entrusted with the responsibility of the student wing of the Muslim Rashtriya Manch. The first Abhyas Varg was organized in Gwalior, where the student wing was formally constituted. He stated that under the guidance of Honorable Indresh Kumar ji, this student wing is continuously working towards fostering patriotism, social awareness, and the eradication of extremism among the Muslim community.

Dr. Shams Equbal: Addressing the program, the Director of the National Council for Promotion of Urdu Language (NCPUL), Dr. Shams Equbal, said that getting the opportunity to share his thoughts at this important program of the Muslim Rashtriya Manch was a matter of privilege for him. Appreciating the efforts of the student wing, he said that by carrying the message of 'Panch Parivartan' (Five Transformations), the youth of the Manch are continuously striving to make the country a self-reliant, empowered, and developed India. He mentioned that a large portion of India's population consists of the youth, and the responsibility of shaping their personalities and providing proper guidance lies on all of us, a duty that is being effectively fulfilled under the leadership of Honorable Indresh Kumar ji.

He added that under the 'Panch Parivartan,' subjects such as environmental protection, family awakening (Kutumb Prabodhan), social harmony, civic duties, and an indigenous (Swadeshi) lifestyle are not only necessary for the upliftment of society but are also the cornerstone for building a developed India. If these principles are put into practice, the creation of an ideal society, city, village, and nation is possible.

Mr. Mohammad Afzal: The National Convener of the Muslim Rashtriya Manch, Mr. Mohammad Afzal, began his address with ‘Guru Vandana’ (paying obeisance to the teacher). He said that although this program is for students and the youth, our guide and source of inspiration, Honorable Indresh Kumar ji, is present among us. He noted that the Guru-Shishya (Teacher-Student) tradition has been an ancient and glorious tradition of India. A true Guru never asks his disciples about their caste, sect, or religion, but imparts knowledge equally to all.

He said that if teachers discharge their duties faithfully, the goal of 'Panch Parivartan' can automatically be achieved. Regarding 'Swadeshi', he stated that India has been a self-reliant nation since ancient times, and today there is a need to encourage our country's industries, enterprises, and local products.

Emphasizing civic duties, he said that every individual must keep the national interest paramount alongside their religious practices. He stated that the Holy Quran lays special emphasis on cleanliness and purity (Pakeezgi), and we must imbibe these teachings in our lives. Speaking on cow protection, he said that the cow is a vital pillar of Indian culture and the rural economy, and society must come forward for its protection and promotion.

Prof. Narendra Singh: The Special Guest of the program and Principal of Zakir Husain College, Prof. Narendra Singh, stated that today's topic is ‘Panch Parivartan’ and that we have gathered here to encourage the students and distribute certificates. He emphasized that the future of the country lies in the hands of today's youth, which is why it is essential to pay special attention to their character-building and moral development.

He added that while many articles, booklets, and research papers have been published on the topic of ‘Panch Parivartan’, their true purpose will not be fulfilled until these principles are made a part of our daily behaviour and conduct. He urged the students to implement the knowledge they acquire into their daily lives and to play an active role in nation-building.

Shri Girish Juyal: The National Convener of the Muslim Rashtriya Manch, Girish Juyal, said in his address that the topic of today's seminar is ‘The Role of Youth in Panch Parivartan’. Referring to the famous Islamic concept of ‘Kun Fayakun’ he noted that the core essence of ‘Kutumb Prabodhan’ is the same to maintain unity, dialogue, and intimacy within the family and society.

He observed that narrow-mindedness is causing families to break apart and human relationships to weaken. While the use of modern technology and mobile phones is necessary, their balanced use is equally important. He urged the youth to spend quality time with their families and strengthen their social bonds.

Prof. Shahid Akhter: In his presidential address, the National Convener of Muslim Rashtriya Manch, Prof. Shahid Akhter, stated that the greatest strength of any nation is its youth. They play the most crucial role in the process of nation-building. Drawing from his teaching career and administrative experiences, he mentioned that guiding students is the most effective way to develop both society and the nation.

He pointed out that we often define our identity based on religion, caste, or community, whereas our first and foremost identity is being an Indian. The youth must understand that their life's goal is not merely to acquire an education, but to become responsible, sensitive, and patriotic citizens.

He further stated that true education is that which makes a person a better human being and a true patriot. Higher education is meaningless if it is not utilized for the welfare of the nation and society. The mission of the Muslim Rashtriya Manch, he noted, is to build a developed, harmonious, and undivided India. Only when individuals better themselves can harmony and goodwill be established in society.

Mentioning the service activities of the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS), he highlighted that during times of disaster and crisis, volunteers never consider the caste, religion, or community of the victim. He called upon the youth to oppose extremism, remain vigilant against anti-national forces, and strengthen brotherhood and national unity in society.

In conclusion, he expressed that it is a great privilege for all of us to have the guidance of such visionary leaders who inspire us to move forward on the path of national service, social harmony, and human values.

A Comprehensive Discourse on National Integration, Cultural Harmony, Education, and Youth Responsibility with Special Reference to Panch Parivartan – Address by Hon'ble Dr. Indresh Kumar ji

Addressing youth, students, teachers, and various sections of society at the Muslim Students and Youth Conference, Dr. Indresh Kumar, senior Pracharak of the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS) and mentor of Muslim Rashtriya Manch, expressed his thoughts in detail on topics such as national unity, Indian culture, family values, education, environmental conservation, social harmony, and nation-building. In his address, he repeatedly emphasized that India's strength lies in its unity in diversity, family values, and its tradition of cultural harmony.

The Spiritual Foundation of Human Relationships: Beginning his address, Dr. Indresh Kumar stated that a human being does not determine their own relationships. Who will be someone's son, brother, or a member of a particular family—this is all part of God's arrangement. The greatest characteristic of Indian culture has been that it has not treated human relationships merely as a social system, but has also provided them with a spiritual and moral foundation. For this reason, relationships like brother-sister, parent-child, teacher-disciple, and the family unit have received immense respect in Indian society.

The Power of Dialogue and Inclusive Upbringing: He mentioned that dialogue plays a crucial role in building a society. A healthy social environment is created only when elders in the family listen to children and children learn from the experiences of their elders. Citing his own family's example, he shared that his parents and grandparents used to listen attentively to the children. This environment developed in him the habit of listening to and understanding others.

Sharing his childhood memories, Dr. Indresh Kumar recounted that on his way to school, he would pass by a temple, a Gurudwara, an Arya Samaj temple, and a Sufi saint's Dargah. His mother taught him to harbor a feeling of respect for every religious place. His mother's message was clear: God is one, even though people call Him by different names. Some call Him Waheguru, some Allah, some Ishwar, some Parmatma, and some God. This teaching cultivated a sense of equal respect for all religions ‘Sarva Dharma Sambhav’ and an inclusive perspective within him.

He stated that these very values later became the guiding direction of his life. Even while studying at Punjab Engineering College, Chandigarh, he accorded equal respect to churches, mosques, and other places of worship. He said that true education is not that which divides humans into "us" and "them," but rather that which teaches the lessons of humanity, coexistence, and mutual respect.

The True Purpose of Education: Discussing the purpose of education, Dr. Indresh Kumar highlighted that merely acquiring a degree or securing employment cannot be the ultimate goal of education. The true purpose is to build an individual's character. He pointed out that parents feel proud of children who are cultured, compassionate, and responsible, whereas the behavior of some other children brings sorrow to both their family and society. Therefore, education that makes a person a good human being and useful to society is essential.

Addressing the students, he advised them to strive for excellence on two levels in the field of study and knowledge. Secondly, in the field of character and conduct. A merely educated person cannot become an ideal for society; rather, an individual who strikes a balance between knowledge and character becomes the true ideal.

National Unity and Identity: Speaking on national unity, Dr. Indresh Kumar stated that India's diversity is its greatest strength. He asked the youth that whether Indian faces look British, American, Arab, Turkish, Russian, or Chinese. Answering his own question, he said that the identity of all these faces is inherently Indian. Despite differences in language, religion, region, caste, and social background, the national identity of Indians remains one.

He elaborated that every individual is born from their mother's womb, and every mother is special to her child, but on a national level, all Indians are part of one large family. It is God's wonderful creation that a shared national identity exists even amidst diversity. He noted that if human beings understand that we are all children of the same God and citizens of the same nation, many conflicts between families, societies, and countries would automatically end.

Experiences of Kashmir and the Power of Faith: Recalling his time in Kashmir, Dr. Indresh Kumar shared that he worked there for about seventeen years during the difficult period of terrorism. He mentioned an incident when an attempt was made to abduct him, which ultimately failed due to circumstances. Highlighting this episode, he said that life brings many difficult situations, but if a person's objective is the welfare of society and the nation, they can bravely face these challenges.

Mentioning his visit to Hazratbal, he shared his desire to pray there in his mother tongue. It was his belief that God does not belong to any specific language and that true devotion can be expressed in any language. He stated that the power of faith is determined not by language, but by emotion and pure sentiment.

Overcoming Extremism and Promoting Goodwill: Quoting the famous line "Mazhab nahin sikhata aapas mein bair rakhna" (Religion does not teach us to harbor ill-will toward one another), Dr. Indresh Kumar remarked that if this thought holds true, there is no justification for religious-based conflicts in society. Indian culture has always championed dialogue, coexistence, and cooperation amidst diversity. He conveyed the message of national unity by leading the attendees in a collective recitation of "Sare Jahan Se Accha, Hindustan Hamara".

In the context of language and culture, he referenced the phrase "Maa ke kadmon mein Jannat" (Paradise lies at the feet of the mother), pointing out that it encompasses words from Sanskrit, Persian, and Arabic. This serves as a prime example of India's tradition of cultural harmony. Languages, He noted that languages should be a medium to connect people, not to divide them.

On the question of extremism versus liberalism, he observed that adopting a stubborn attitude on every issue generates tension in society. Conversely, the path of dialogue, consensus, and cooperation drives society forward. Extremism breeds demonic tendencies, whereas harmony and tolerance pave the path of humanity.

Reflecting on terrorism and relations with neighbors, he provided an analogy: if a young man gets angry with his family and leaves home, a good neighbor will try to reunite him with his family, while a bad neighbor will instigate him toward violence. Through this, he explained that the primary responsibility of any nation or society should be to promote peace, cooperation, and goodwill.

Environmental Conservation and Cleanliness: Speaking on environmental conservation, he mentioned World Environment Day and recalled a proverb taught to him in his childhood: "Jahan hoti hai safai, wahan nahi hoti ladai" (Where there is cleanliness, there is no conflict). He emphasized that cleanliness is not limited to the physical environment but is also deeply connected to mental and social purity. A clean environment fosters positive thinking, discipline, and social harmony. He urged everyone to stay clean, maintain cleanliness, and inspire others to do the same.

Family Awakening and Social Harmony: On the topic of family awakening (Parivar Prabodhan), Dr. Indresh Kumar stated that the family is a child's first school. It is the responsibility of parents and elders to sit with children regularly, converse with them, share inspiring stories, and introduce them to life's core values. He noted that stories, dialogue, and practical behavior leave a far greater impact than mere preaching. Good citizens can only be nurtured through good cultural values.

Speaking on social harmony, he stated that while the diversity of caste, language, and religion is natural in a society, there must be no discrimination, hatred, or conflict based on these differences. All communities should respect each other's festivals, traditions, and sentiments. India's true strength lies in this harmony and coexistence.

Role of Youth and Economic Nationalism: Discussing the role of the youth, he emphasized the need for student conferences and intellectual dialogues across the country. He called upon the students to organize positive youth programs in their respective areas, stressing that the youth should not merely be spectators but active participants in social transformation and nation-building.

On the subjects of Swadeshi, self-reliance, and economic nationalism, Dr. Indresh Kumar stated that India is currently gaining immense respect on the global stage. He urged the youth to use Indian products, promote domestically manufactured goods, and contribute to the national campaign for economic self-reliance. He remarked that ‘Aatmanirbhar Bharat’ (Self-reliant India) is not just an economic program but a powerful symbol of national pride.

Lastly, Dr. Indresh Kumar summarized that India's future will only be bright when a seamless balance is established between education and values, development and environmental conservation, diversity and unity, personal Success and social responsibility He called upon the youth to adopt the values of national interest, social welfare, and humanity in their lives, expressing deep confidence that India's youth will play a pivotal role in taking the country to unprecedented new heights.

The occasion was also graced by several other distinguished attendees, including Prof. Mushtaq Alam Qadri from the Urdu Department at the University of Delhi, Maulana Kaukab Mujtaba, a renowned Islamic scholar and cleric, Mufti Tahir Qasmi, Vice President of the Ulema Foundation, Mr. Khursheed Rajaka, Former Chairman of the MDA, Govt. of Haryana, Mr. Anil Garg, Mr. Mohammad Faiz Khan, National Convener of Gau Prakoshth, Mr. Yajvendra Yadav, author, Mr. Abu Talib, PGT Commerce for the Govt. of Delhi, Mrs. Asma Sualeheen, a motivational speaker and career counselor, and Dr. Keshav Patel from the University of Delhi. #WATCH | Delhi: Senior RSS leader, Indresh Kumar says, "A gradual transformation is taking place in the country. A sentiment is awakening among the youth that if we channel education towards national progress, we can build a better nation—a better Hindustan. This event conveys a ls for the eradication of hatred; it challenges those who believed that Hindus and Muslims could not coexist, inspiring them instead to come together, live together, and move forward together. Ultimately, the parties that seek to divide and fragment the country will inevitably face defeat one day." (07.06)
